Dear Authors..

Meeting Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) is currently one of the world's principal issues, particularly among scholarly discourse. As the UNDP stated, SDGs are a universal call to action to eliminate poverty, protect the planet, and ensure that all people enjoy peace and prosperity. Therefore, as a dedication to achieve these goals, the Journal of Government and Politics or JGP (recognized also as Jurnal Studi Pemerintahan) promotes such a topic under the theme "Trends in Politics and Government dealing with Sustainable Development Goals" through the third conference. Politics and government are main subjects which will be examined further.

There are 42 selected papers which are presented here and divided into six different sub-themes. Nevertheless, ten of them are excluded from this proceeding because the authors prefer to publish their papers at the expected journal. Therefore, this proceeding eventually has 32 published papers. Chapter I is going to explain decentralization, local governance and politics by providing eight valuable papers. They are on the investment policy framework through Galang Batang Special Economic Area in Bintan Island (Muzwardi, A., Riyadi, S. F., & Yahya, G. Y.), the implementation of inclusion sub-district in Yogyakarta City (P. Febriantanto), Awak Nanggroe or Ex-Free Aceh Movement on construction sector (Hajad, V.), and a collaborative governance model in delivering public health service to the border areas (Sulaksono, T., Suswanta, & Efendi, D.).

Chapter II depicts local governance and urban planning. There are eight relevant papers in this chapter. They are on special autonomy through anthropological approach in Papua Province (Lambelanova, R., & Ngadisah), the accountability of fund village management in infrastructure development at the village level in Gunung Kidul Regency (Nurfaizal, M. D., Mutiarin, D., & Sakir), the properness analysis of new district formation in Pacitan Regency (Alita, E. W., Sudiby, D. P., & Haryanti, R. H.), the effectiveness of Unit Layanan Pengadaan as assessor of e-procurement in Central Java (Gusmi, A. D.), and the empowerment of community education in sub-urban of Yogyakarta City (Putra, R. A., & Kiyoya, Y. A.).

Chapter III partrays issues related to public policy, governance administration, and justice. There are eight interesting papers: the application of the principles of good governance at the hospital of UNS Surakarta (Pradityo, H. A., Setyowati, K., & Nugroho, R. A.), the implementation of communication programs in tourism sectors (Praptiningsih, N. A., Putri, D. A., Subhiat, A. P., & Handayani, D. P.), an alternative model of space falling objects investigation in Indonesia (Fatmawati, N. S., & Susanti, D.), the government support to the internationalization in higher education (Kusumawati, N. S., Nurhaeni, I. D. A., & Nugroho, R. A.), and Facebook as a communication media in by use of Smart Indonesia Card (Yolanda, S., & Praptaningsih, N. A.).

Chapter IV discusses democracy, elections, political parties, conflict, and religion. Seven useful papers are presented here: the implementation of Noken, traditional electoral mechanism, in Papua (Wargadinata, E.), improving the quality of simultaneous local elections in Indonesia (Sarofah, R., Habibullah, A., & Zuhriyati, E.), the dissolution of political parties in keeping ideology and security in Indonesia and Germany (Agustine, O. V., & Triningsih, A.), rethinking the case of blasphemy in Indonesia's Tanjung Balai (Hidayati, M.), politicizing the hybrid city in Indonesia (Fansuri, H.), examining Muhammadiyah neutrality in the practical politics (Al-Hamdi, R., & Aryudhi, E. P.), and the relation between Kiai and politics in Temanggung Regency (Firmansyah, H. P., & Ijabah, A. L.), and Managing Electoral Disputes: Challenges toward Electoral Integrity in the Simultaneous Regional Election in Central Java (Widodo, B. E. C., & Purwaningsih, T.).

Chapter V investigates the issues of gender equality. Eight meaningful papers are bestowed here. They are on gender responsive health services (Hayzaki, S. H., & Nurhaeni, I. D. A.), problem of women in Indonesian bureaucracy (Sweinstani, M. K. D.), women's transformational leadership in environment management (Pramesti, A. A. I., & Nurhaeni, I. D. A.), changing family and challenges of engendering government policy in Japan (Mutiarin, D., Kuwuhara, N., & Purwaningsih, T.), and the rejuvenation of interfaith women movements (Asworo, L.).

Chapter VI relays studies on issues related to communities, partnerships, and green politics. There are eight intriguing papers displayed in this proceeding. They are on the dramaturgy on self-presentation gay "Coming Out" and "Not Fully Coming Out" in Jakarta (Praptiningsih, N. A., & Handayani, A. K.), community-based tourism promotion policy and communities solidarity in upper Northern Thailand (Koment, J., & Panyadee, C.), Adat communities and modern democracy (Asrinaldi), moving critical ecology literation as response to global warming issues (Miasih, M., & Kencono, D. S.), and a local agriculture officer: A human resource constraint of Thai agricultural decentralization (Yossuck, P., & Kawichai, P.).

In this proceeding, nonetheless, we still mention the title of the ten papers where the authors are going to submit to the targeted journal: Indonesia village fiscal transfers policy (Anshari, K.), a dilemma between regulations and interests in the case of granting of mangrove forest hoarding permits in Tanjungpinang City (Sepriandi, S., & Fridayani, H. D.), the law enforcement implementation against rice mixing crime in Special Capital Region of Jakarta and surrounding areas (Sitepu, E. E.), the evaluation of policy for development of drinking water distribution systems in achievement of public health in Riau Province (Alrahman, R., Sukarman, & Wicaksono, B.), the importance of discretion practice for public authorities (Rachmad, A., Suharto, D. G., & Wahyuningsih, R. D.), maritime economic development policy through Natuna-Anambas-Lingga maritime connectivity in Kepulauan Riau Province (Akbar, D., Darmawan, E., & Okparizan), the influence of transnational advocacy network for gendercide issue in the People's Republic of China (Azizah, N. & Amalia, N. R.), the apparatus' tourism consciousness work culture and its influence on the satisfaction tourism community (Frinaldi, A. Khaidir, A., & Rahayu, V. Y.), the role of local Balinese culture amongst sustainable communities in preservation efforts of Ayung River (Rosilawati, Y., Mulawarman, K., Sofyan, N., Mulyantari, E.), and guidelines to strengthen the development of community welfare funds in upper Northern Thailand (Kaewtip, S., & Thammakun, S.).

All in all, we express our great gratitude to all authors, presenters, keynote speakers, committees, editors, reviewers, proofreaders, and partners who support this conference. We hope that this proceeding helps enhance your knowledge on current issues of politics and government in relation to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Enjoy reading the proceeding.
